Totem Pole, Salford

We have now completed our part in the restoration to Salford's totem pole. Shipped over in 1969 the 32 foot high pole stood outside Manchester Liners Headquarter for over 30 years and is a symbol of friendship between Manchester and Canada. Over recent years the pole fell into disrepair and had been stored in a disused warehouse.

The pole was originally carved by Doug Cranmer, chief of the Kwakwaka'wakw tribe and although he died three years ago his nephew Kevin Cranmer has agreed to carry out the repairs to the cedar wood pole.

Burnaby Stone Care have carried out the delicate task of removing layers of unsuitable paint utilising a low-pressure (7 p.s.i.) fine abrasive, specially developed by ourselves, to prevent damage to the underlying wood.

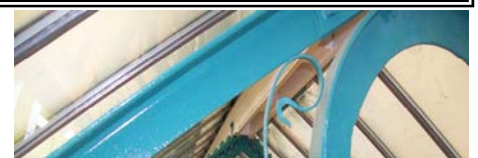

This system has been inspected by The British Museum in London who have expressed, not only a keen interest in the pole, but also the techniques used in the restorative process.

Victoria Baths, Manchester

Winner of the popular BBC programme, Restoration, Victoria Baths has been undergoing restorative repairs to the Gala Pool roof.

Burnaby were asked to carry out the cleaning, priming and decorative top coat to the intricate cast iron roof, which as you can see has now been completed successfully.

Queen's Chambers, John Dalton Street Manchester

Cleaning and stone repairs have now been completed to internal decorative arches at the above.

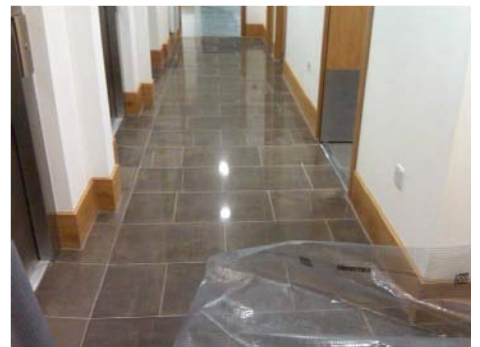

Following a fire Burnaby were asked to carry out smoke-damage removal works and also stone carving and indentation to return the sandstone to its former condition.

Peel Court, Atkinson Street, Manchester

Works have now been completed to Peel Court, Spinning Fields, Manchester, for the polishing and sealing to all nine floors in this new-build office development. As you can see the results we have been able to achieve are impressive.
